Ohio Crippled by Sleet-Snow Storm

JFK Rejects Nikita Bid for Summit Talk

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy is reported to have formally turned down Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest demand for a summit meeting to open next month's disarmament conference in Geneva.

New Red Space Advance Hinted May Have Developed Air-Launch System

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union may have developed a system using manned rocket planes to launch spaceships, satellites and intercontinental missiles, some U. S. intelligence specialists report.

Their conclusions, based on analysis of available Russian publications, were made public Friday after having been kept in the secret file for nine months.

The accuracy of their findings is not fully accepted by the government. And some sources point out that the system, if the Soviets have developed it, is not completely new.

The United States, they noted, is developing an air-launched ballistic missile, the Skybolt, to be carried by B52 bombers. The Skybolt would have a range of 1,000 miles.

However, the intelligence analysis said there was reason to believe the Russians already have used the air-launch system in a number of space shots.

Here is how the Russians apparently worked it, according to the 160-page intelligence report:

Two manned rocketplanes were attached to opposite sides of a powerful rocket engine, thus acting as first-stage rockets for the launching.

Near the fringes of space, the planes detached from the larger rocket and were flown back to earth by their pilots.

The second stage rocket then continued into space, carrying a third stage that eventually completed the flight on its own.

The reported development could have significance in missile warfare and space programs as the first-stage rocketplanes would be recovered and used again.

The government cautioned, "The publication of this report does not constitute approval by any U. S. government organization."

Snow, Sleet Don't Stop Hiking Mailman

EAST LIVERPOOL — Although mailman Ed Kline plans to cover only 35 miles today in his protest walk to Washington, D. C., he'll have been in three states before noon.

Kline, who began his projected 10-day, 325-mile sojourn from his Cuyahoga Falls home Thursday morning, will cross the Ohio and West Virginia state lines and enter Pennsylvania today — a distance of about six miles. He plans to stop in Pittsburgh for the night.

The 31-year-old mailman's hike is intended to dramatize postal employees' efforts to win wage increases.

Light snow and sleet failed to slow Kline down Friday as he walked 40 miles from Alliance to East Liverpool.

Officials of the East Liverpool Branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers put Kline up at the Traveler's Hotel Friday night.

Glenn Family In Seclusion After Wild Ovation

Congress Awaiting Spaceman's Talk On Monday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., his name a household word and his face familiar to schoolchildren — sought seclusion today. Few Americans, including the President of the United States, would blame him.

For nearly three months he has been in the public eye.

But in something more than four fantastic hours Tuesday, he faced his grim task, and by his skill and the help of men of skill on the ground below, he accomplished it.

Friday he returned full circle to the place where his struggle was born, to Cape Canaveral and to Pad 14 where his Atlas rocket was launched and to Mercury Control where his friends and compatriots had waited and hoped for his safe return.

Probably the squeals and cheers of Cocoa Beach schoolchildren still ring in his ears—and the questions of newsmen and the glaring lights of television cameras are still in the recent threshold of memory.

But there, too, is the first look on the face of his wife, Anna, as he stepped from the plane that brought him to Patrick Air Force Base. And still he must remember the look of expectancy in the eyes of his daughter, Lyn, 14, and his son, David, 16, as he disembarked.

He must remember, too, the pride and interest David had as he peered into the heart of the spaceship that had carried his father three times around the world in a frenzied orbit through space.

Glenn could probably remember something of his own words as he explained the equipment dangling, now almost uselessly, inside.

"Our boosters may not be as large as some others," President Kennedy had said, "but our men and women are."

The President had made the remark before presenting Glenn with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Distinguished Service Medal.

After the ceremony in front of Hangar 5, where Glenn had trained and donned his space suit for his adventure last Tuesday, Glenn and his family and a few guests retired into the hangar for lunch.

Later, after the President had departed for Palm Beach, Glenn sat before a row of senators and congressmen and a tent nearly full of newsmen and tried to impart something of his adventure to the American public.

"It was very spectacular, looking out into this orange glow and seeing those big flaming chunks go back along the flight path," Glenn said of the only incident

Southwestern Sector Almost Paralyzed

10 Inches of Snow Blankets North; Area Damage Light

Most of Ohio lay under crippling ice and snow today from one of the worst winter storms the Buckeye State has seen in years.

The southwestern fourth of the state was nearly paralyzed by Friday night's downpour of ice and sleet. The northern half was digging out of snow which accumulated up to 10 inches.

Only the southeast fourth of the state was relatively spared, but there heavy rains sent streams to their banks.

Damage Not Heavy Here

In the Salem area, the Ohio Edison Co. reported light damage to some of its facilities. Power lines were down in the Winona and Logtown areas, but service was disrupted only a couple hours. Tom Corrigan, district line supervisor, said.

J. R. Stiver, plant chief of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., said about 15 "wire-down" reports had been received by the company's service department by mid-morning today, indicating damages were not heavy.

Both the Lisbon and Canfield barracks of the Ohio Highway Patrol reported roads in their areas were snow-covered and dangerous throughout the night and this morning. Patrolmen attributed several mishaps to weather conditions.

The icy rain and snow totaled about an inch and a quarter in precipitation, attendants at the Salem sewage disposal plant said.

Deep slush made it hazardous for both motorist and pedestrian. Trees and shrubbery in the Salem district were coated with ice.

The front moved into the state late Friday and quickly locked up highway traffic.

In the ice area which stretched from the Ohio River Valley to just north of U.S. 40, thousands of power lines were down, hospitals were using emergency supplies, trees toppled, utility poles snapped and live wires started hundreds of minor fires.

Dodge Fallen Limbs

In Columbus, Dayton, Springfield and smaller communities motorists dodged fallen limbs; street lights failed; communications were disrupted.

North of U.S. 40 a near-blinding snowstorm caused motorists to leave their cars in the downtown areas of many cities and struggle homeward on foot.

Cleveland Hopkins Airport closed down shortly before 10 p.m. when visibility was reduced to less than 450 feet.

One death was reported which

Girl Thanks Judge For Right Decision

LISBON — Judge Joel H. Sharp, who officiated at a change of custody hearing for an eight-year-old girl in 1951, Friday received a letter of gratitude from the girl for his decision and an invitation to her wedding.

The Uniontown, Pa., girl wrote, "If it had not been for you, our attorney and my two present parents, my wonderful situation probably would never have come about."

Judge Sharp awarded custody of the girl, now 19, to her father following his divorce from his wife. He later remarried.

The judge's reply to the bride-to-be contained regrets that previous commitments forced him to decline the invitation, and wishes for her continued happiness.

Says Red China Security Threatened

Peiping Asks U. S. Quit S. Viet Nam

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping charged today that U. S. military support of South Viet Nam seriously affected the security of Red China and Communist North Viet Nam and threatened the peace of Asia.

The United States "is already in an undeclared war in South Viet Nam," Peiping said in a statement broadcast by the New China news agency.

Peiping denounced what it called the armed U. S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

"This state of affairs cannot be allowed to continue," the Peiping statement said. "The Chinese (Communist) government holds that the coexistence of the 1954 Geneva Conference and the countries concerned must promptly hold consultations and take appropriate measures to eliminate the serious danger of war in southern Viet Nam."

Peiping said, "Recently, the United States of America has become more and more bold and unscrupulous in its intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam."

The statement called on the United States "to stop at once its armed intervention in South Viet Nam and immediately withdraw all its military men and

Heart Fund Canvass Scheduled Sunday

The door to door Heart Fund campaign will be conducted in Salem Sunday afternoon. The goal is $2,500.

Workers are asked to meet at the Farmers National Bank at noon Sunday to begin the campaign at 1 p.m. Solicitors will be identified with tags. An address envelope to the Heart Fund will be left at the homes of people who are not home, announced Chairman Edward Hart.

If Whitehead carries out this threat, he will be following white-ruled South Africa, which barred U.N. probers from entering mandated South West Africa last year.

Whitehead is scheduled to visit London next week to discuss Southern Rhodesian affairs and probably broach U.N. "interference" then.

The U.N. issue came to a head Friday night with an assembly request to its 17-nation Committee on Independence for Colonies "to consider whether the territory of Southern Rhodesia has attained a full measure of self-government."

The vote was 57-21, with 24 abstentions.

Object of the study would be to determine whether Britain is obliged to give the United Nations regular information on economic, social and educational conditions in Southern Rhodesia, as colonial powers are required to do on their nonself-governing territories. Britain contends that Southern Rhodesia has been self-governing since the early 1920s.

Castro Absence Stirs Rumors Out of Public Eye For Past 11 Days

By The Associated Press

Prime Minister Fidel Castro has been out of the public eye in Havana for the past 11 days.

His absence — developing into something of a mystery — has stirred up a number of rumors, none of them confirmed.

In the past Castro has often disappeared for days. But a Mexico City newspaper published a rumor that Castro had slipped into asylum in Havana. The Mexican ambassador, Gilberto Bosques, told reporters in Havana the rumor "is absolutely baseless."

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Cuban Chief Delegate Mario Garcia-Inchaustegui was asked about the rumors and said: "This is not a serious question. It is completely phony."

Officials in Havana who would know declined to talk about Castro's whereabouts, but this is not unusual.

Castro was expected to attend recent ceremonies putting another ship into the Cuban merchant fleet. But since the first announcement of this by Havana radio, there has been no further reference to him in this connection. Reports of the ceremonies made no mention of his presence; he could not be seen in a television version monitored at Key West, Fla.

Another rumor that could not be confirmed was that Castro was in Moscow.

Castro's last major appearance before the Cuban public was when he read a 13,000-word speech on Feb. 5 attacking the United States and some Latin-American countries for their roles in the foreign ministers conference at Punta del Este, from late January to early February.

The fact Castro read the declaration—he normally speaks without notes in evidence—has led to speculation that a Communist-line leadership was running his government, and some restrictions had been placed on him.

Confident Living

By Dr. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
Make Worry Work For You

Dr. Peale

A friend of mine was 50 years of age when a terrible misfortune hit him. Fred had done well as a retail merchant of women's wear. But one day he woke up to find that his partner had swindled him. The big, profitable store in which Fred had the majority ownership "went down the drain to settle debts." Fred was out.

Fred had begun as a poor boy. He had started a little shop which over the years was gradually built into a sizable enterprise. But then he made a serious mistake by taking an able younger man into a junior partnership. He had, of course, assumed his partner to be honest but he guessed wrong. Result: he was now financially back where he started.

When I heard of Fred's situation I telephoned him long distance. "Fred, I'm so sorry about your losing the store and all the trouble you're having."

IMAGINE MY ADMIRATION when he answered "Sure, I lost the store and almost all my money. You could say I'm out 30 years of work. But that would not be true for I was living and getting a lot out of life all that time. Thirty years ago when I started out I had $50. Now I'm way ahead. I started with a wonderful wife and I still have her, thank God. I had very little know-how back 30 years ago; so I'm ahead on experience too. Most important of all—God was with me when I began and he is still with me today. And one always learns from such experiences. I will know better how to deal with people in the future."

So ran his positive and intelligent approach. He opened another store and went on to big success.

FRED'S DEALING with his problem is a classic example of how to deal creatively with a hard situation. A person can worry himself into a nervous breakdown or he can make worry work for him by taking it as a signal saying don't give up—just start thinking.

A great thing that worry can do for any of us is to activate our minds and get them to working on a problem. But if you give way to panic and resentment your mind freezes and things go from bad to worse. So when worry seizes you, remind yourself that it is going to ride you unless you ride it. And how do you ride worry? Simply by using the real powers of your mind.

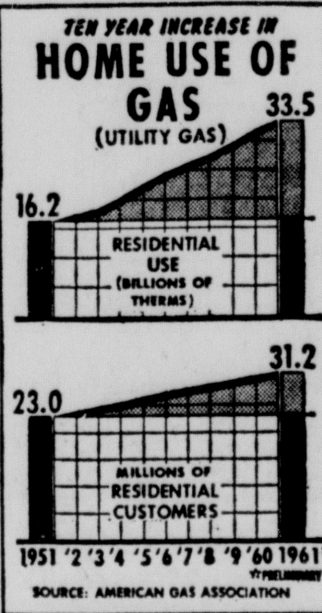

One thing Fred said really struck me; "I decided that I would not be an IF thinker but a HOW thinker." That's a really smart distinction. The IF thinker broods over a difficulty or a setback, saying to himself, "If only I had done thus and so. . . If only this or that circumstance had been different. . . If others had not treated me so unfairly. . . So it goes from explanation to explanation. The world is full of defeated IF thinkers.

THE HOW THINKER, on the other hand, wastes no energy on postmortems when faced with trouble or disaster but immediately starts looking for the best solution. He asks himself: HOW can I work this out? HOW can I turn this to my profit? and, believe me, the HOW thinker gets problems solved creatively.

Make worry work for you. Take a worrisome situation as a challenge to some real HOW thinking. Have faith in God and realize that difficulties often come through His wise providence for our good. And always remember this—you can think your way to victorious handling of the most difficult situation.

Epictetus, the freed Greek slave who became one of the most respected philosophers of all time, said: "Difficulties are what show men's character. Therefore when a difficult crisis meets you, remember that you are like the raw youth with whom God the trainer is wrestling."

"To what end?" asked a student. Epictetus answered, "That you may win at Olympia." He was referring to the Olympic Games, which in the ancient world, as now, symbolized strength, skill, endurance and manhood. It was a Greek's splendid way of saying that by making worry work for you the difficulties you encounter merely add to your knowledge and strength.

The lion that can roar the loudest and bite the hardest usually gets what he wants.

That's the way it is in the animal kingdom, and sometimes the system creeps into man's world too!

Most of us have too much RELIGIOUS AWARENESS to believe that such a system is the best one. We would rather live in a world in which kindness and peace and unselfishness were the rule.

Our Churches can help us build such a world. They can turn our religious awareness into SPIRITUAL GROWTH.

On Sunday morning, the man in the armchair knows just as well as the man in the pew what is wrong with the world. But the man in the pew will be busy doing something about it!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers built a record 129 million bushels of additional grain storage facilities on their farms under a government loan program last year.

This compared with 60.6 million bushels of capacity built in 1960.

The agriculture department makes loans up to 95 per cent of the cost of such facilities. The loans, which totaled $35,068,000 to 23,728 borrowers, are payable over a 5-year period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Clarence McCormick of the National Advisory Committee for the Rural Areas Development Program says a serious shortage of potential leaders has developed in many distressed rural areas of the country.

This fact reflects, he says, heavy migration of the able people from such areas in search of jobs elsewhere.

—But Don't Go Near the Water

Next Monday hearings on proposed legislation to control an international space satellite communications system will open in Washington.

They will be held by the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee, whose chairman is Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla. The policy the hearings will help to determine will be with the American people a long time. It will bear watching.

Again there is the touchy issue of whether politicians should be allowed to determine as a matter of public policy that private enterprise can be barred from certain fields because they are too large to be trusted to private hands.

This is the same question public power developers have raised for the electrical industry, which has been threatened by federal takeover since the early days of the New Deal under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It is the question raised in the case of atomic energy, where the federal government exploited its monopoly of necessity during wartime to keep tight postwar control of a source of power.

The issue is never settled.

THE GOVERNMENT takeover crowd never gives up, and the private enterprise people never give in. They take their shellackings and bob up to fight again another day.

The attempt to have government take over space satellite communications completely has been sidetracked by a Solomonic recommendation of President Kennedy for splitting the difference between public and private ownership.

Instead of yielding to those who wanted him to recommend all private ownership, the President proposed a government-charted monopoly that would be privately owned but operated by a kind of cartel under government regulation.

Private enterprise in this new communications field would be kept at bay by being barred from holding either voting or dividend-paying stock. Its holdings would be useful only for determining rates for other services. Voting rights and dividends would be available only to outsiders in the communications field.

THIS WOULD BE one of the most stirring opportunities since the "darling daughter" was permitted to go swimming if she didn't go near the water. The only thing that makes it worth considering is the thought it may be the best deal private enterprise can get; that the alternative might be a communications counterpart of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Outsiders hoping to move in on this exciting new opportunity to provide service in communications for a profit should be reconciled to the "long pull."

The billion dollars' worth of stock that would be offered would cost at least $1,000 a share and buyers would be warned against hope of profit for years to come, though eventual prospects of profit would be excellent for everybody except the private enterprise that would make the profit possible; namely, the communications industry.

It would be barred from its own field by a political decision.

Last Ditch In Algeria

Everybody is making a hobby of psychoanalyzing the diehard Frenchmen trying to block Algerian independence. Are these renegades in uniform insane?

All theories revolve around this central fact — that the leadership of the diehards is coming from a group of rebellious militarists.

The settlement of the issue hinges on whether the bulk of the French army will be loyal to the government in a showdown.

With the possibility in mind that some French officers may be waiting to switch over to the rebels if they appear to have a chance to win, limited supplies are being sent to military posts. French militarists are fighting French militarists.

This is a clash between soldiers who believe it is their duty to serve the established government and soldiers who believe it is their duty to serve only their own version of what the government should do.

French militarists are all aware that Algeria has been a last ditch and that when they fall back they are confessing that an era has ended. President De Gaulle talks about a new France that is going to emerge as a first-class power, but that is no likelier to happen in the lifetime of Frenchmen now living than a resurgence of the power that once put Britain at the top of the world.

Every country faces a problem when it asks militarists to accommodate themselves to civil authority. In Britain, the dying spasm of the militarists was the bloody folly of the attack on Suez, in which France was an eager accomplice.

In Japan, militarists who held the upper hand precipitated a war they couldn't win, to demonstrate their supremacy. In every bootstrap nation struggling for recognition, men with guns and uniforms are first to strut and last to bow down when adversity strikes.

Moderationists in France are reported to believe the extremists of the far right and the far left are of no real importance because both represent a position of insanity. Moderationists put their faith in the mental stability of the majority of Frenchmen. They don't believe it is possible for extremists to shoot their way into power or to scare Frenchmen into surrender.

They do believe the DeGaulle credo that France must make peace with the Algerian Moslems — what phrase — makers in the United States would call a "no-win policy." One can only wonder how the same issue would shape up if the United States had an Algerian problem to settle.

Covet That Permit

Driving not only is a responsibility, it is a privilege.

No one knows better than the Salem man who this week was told by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard never to apply for an Ohio driver's license. The errand motorist's 28 demerits branded him as the state's worst offender of traffic laws. He had run the gamut of arrests.

The case in point should make the rest of us appreciate that little slip of paper, called a driver's license, that we carry.

Operator, Get Me Jackie

First Since Wendell Willkie

By CLYDE H. FARNSWORTH

NEW YORK — Only a handful of the nation's three score presidents and "also rans" had been grounded in business before running for the highest office, but many more dabbled with balance sheets at one point or another in their lives.

George Romney, president of American Motors, who master-minded one of the great business triumphs of the last decade, has announced his decision to run for governor of Michigan. He already is being discussed as a possible Republican dark-horse candidate for the presidential election of 1964.

If it all works out as some pundits are forecasting, Mr. Romney would be the first presidential candidate from the business community since Wendell L. Willkie, Indiana-born utility executive who was Roosevelt's New Deal policies and who ran against FDR in 1940.

ALTHOUGH Harry Truman ran a haberdashery shop (which failed), and President Kennedy is heir to one of the nation's biggest fortunes, only Alf Landon, Herbert Hoover, Warren Harding and James Cox, of the candidates of this century, had direct business interests.

Landon was an independent oil man who accumulated nearly $1 million in Kansas oil fields, later became governor of the state, but was swamped by FDR in 1936. He carried only Maine and Vermont.

Hoover, upon graduation from Stanford University, became a mining engineer and later a partner in an international engineering firm. He gave up a huge salary to organize the Belgian Relief Commission at the start of World War I, and defeated Alfred E. Smith in the campaign of 1928.

Both Harding and Cox started as Ohio newspapermen and accomplished the ambition of most reporters and bought their own papers. Newspaper publishing always has been one of the most hotly competitive businesses in the United States.

HARDING in the 1890s bought the Marion, Ohio, Daily Star and then entered politics, becoming successively state senator, lieutenant governor, U.S. senator and president.

Cox, who was described once as "the best reporter and the worst writer in southern Ohio," borrowed money to buy the failing Dayton News and, later, the Springfield Press — Republican. After turning these properties into commercial successes, he became a congressman and later, two-term governor of the state.

The two publishers ran against each other in the League of Nations campaign of 1920. Cox, stumping the country on a platform strongly backing the league, was swamped by Harding.

There have been other candidates in this country on the fringes of business. John W. Davis, for example, the dark horse in 1924 who lost to Calvin Coolidge, was a West Virginia lawyer who represented many coal, gas, oil and glass companies, along with the glass workers' and mine workers' unions.

Adlai E. Stevenson and Thomas E. Dewey, also in their capacities as lawyers, have represented big corporations. (Although it was a decade after his defeat by Harry Truman in 1948, Mr. Dewey was brought up to Albany by the late Robert R. Young to act as parliamentarian at what was expected to be, and indeed did become, a particularly rowdy annual stockholders meeting of the New York Central Railroad.)

INDEED, most presidential candidates have been trained in the law. The next most successful training ground has been the military.

Going back to the earlier days of the republic, many candidates also dabbled in business, although not one was a businessman as such.

Possibly the most prominent from the business standpoint was Aaron Burr, the gifted, free-wheeling politician who tangled with Alexander Hamilton and finally killed him in a duel.

In the campaign of 1800, Burr was placed on the presidential ticket with Thomas Jefferson. This was before the two-party system as we know it today.

It had been intended that Burr would become vice president, but, through a blunder, his name received as many electoral votes as Jefferson and the decision was thrown to the House of Representatives. According to rumors at the time, Burr actively sought the highest office. Largely through Hamilton's efforts, Burr lost.

ONE YEAR before this donnybrook, Burr got a charter to form a water company called Manhattan Co., with permission to use inactive funds to conduct a banking operation.

It is this company, the wooden pipes of which are still occasionally dug up in New York City excavations, that is the antecedent of the giant Chase Manhattan Bank, second-biggest private banking operation in the world, with assets topping $10 billion.

Gen. George McClellan, who lost to Lincoln in 1864, combined a military and business career. Before becoming commander of the Army of the Potomac, he went to work for the Illinois Central Railroad as chief engineer.

A year later he was made a vice-president and two years later had wiped out more than $300,000 of debts the carrier had accumulated. He then was offered the presidency of the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad and was on the way to becoming one of the country's leading railroad men when the Civil War erupted in 1860.

SAMUEL TILDEN, who lost to Rutherford B. Hayes in the disputed election of 1876, was a smart New York City corporation lawyer. Here's what Irving Stone said about him in his popular book, "They Also Ran":

"He proved to have an almost uncanny ability to salvage, rearrange, combine and otherwise rescue sinking industries. From his reorganization of failing railroads, he made large sums of money; this he began to invest in coal mines and new iron works. Above all, he had a nose for stocks."

Like Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, those illustrious members of the Virginia dynasty, Horatio Seymour, who lost to Grant in 1868, was a member of the landed gentry. None of these men could be considered true businessmen, although running a huge land operation in those days, as today, is indeed business.

Horace Greeley was the only publisher to enter the presidential sweepstakes of the 19th century. Founder of the New York Tribune, he fought and lost to Grant in 1872.

IN GENERAL, successful businessmen always have had troubles winning elections. A couple of the unsuccessful businessmen, however, fared pretty well.

Harry Truman came out of World War I and set up a haberdashery shop in Kansas City with an Army buddy. The enterprise failed after the recession of 1921, leaving Truman saddled with debts totaling $20,000, which he paid off penny for penny over the next 10 years.

Lincoln clerked in a general store in New Salem, Ill. When this store failed, Lincoln, like Truman, turned to politics.

Willkie was the first chief of a big corporation to run for the presidency. He joined the legal staff of Commonwealth & Southern, a utility holding company with operating units in 11 states, in 1929, and became its president in 1933.

THROUGHOUT the 1930s, he attacked big government, had a running fight with the Tennessee Valley Authority and pleaded for government understanding of the businessman.

Though not exactly parallel, Romney's career bears many striking similarities. He has come out strongly against "bigness" in labor and business, which he says has stifled competition.

Willkie was never identified particularly with the Republican Party until late in the 1930s. He called himself "a liberal Democrat who changed his party affiliation because he found democracy in the Republican Party and not in the New Deal."

Romney, until the present, has not been identified with the Republican Party.

Matter of Fact

Most mystery fans connect Scotland Yard with British police inspectors. But long ago it really was Scottish. A palace in that location was built by Scottish royalty for a place to stay while visiting London. During the 1600s the palace was replaced by English government buildings. One of these was police headquarters — the very British "Scotland Yard" known to Sherlock Holmes fans.

Compact GOP

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Road to Republican Convention Is Long, Rough

Without prejudging the potential provided by George Romney for the future of the Republican party, several practical considerations should be faced.

The road to the Republican National Convention is long and rough. The problems carried by whoever wins the nomination must be very heavy.

And this is a formidable burden even for an individual who has pushed his company into successful competition in an industry whose past is strewn with failures.

The benign pat on the back for the announced candidate for the governorship of Michigan by the emeritus head of the Republican party, Mr. Eisenhower, must be assayed with caution.

The former President's criteria for Republican leadership reflect qualities he himself presented in 1952 — complete freedom from any taint of Republicanism in earlier days, and a name well known in some field other than political life.

This, of course, overlooks the fact that a good name needs loyal and active work at the precinct level by experienced workers, effective organization and sound financial backing to win in Michigan and other states.

The former President may have forgotten how far short these qualifications were found to be in the disaster which befell his candidate, James P. Mitchell, in New Jersey.

In many respects George Romney meets the Eisenhower criteria. He said in a television interview that he never found it necessary to identify himself with the Republican party until he sought a place in the current constitutional convention in Michigan. He pointed out that there is a responsibility higher than partisanship.

This is only measurably true for, as he said, the responsibility of citizenship comes first. But one of the cardinal qualifications of a good citizen is respect for the two-party system without which the liberties of the individual would be in grave jeopardy.

MR. ROMNEY said further, no doubt referring to Michigan, that the "image" of the Republican party is that of a political entity dedicated to business as distinguished from citizens' interests. This is the "image" Democrats have vigorously promoted for their opposition. It is true that the big automobile companies centered in Michigan have until recently been more concerned with lobbying in Lansing than with encouraging their employees at the management level to get into work at the precincts.

Any experienced Republican politician in Michigan could tell Mr. Romney that, but for the lack of adequate funds in the final weeks of the 1960 campaign and precinct work in Wayne County, an excellent Republican candidate, Paul Bagwell, would now be governor and Nixon would have carried the state.

It was not wealth but poverty that fell before the hosts and the money of Reuther and Gus Scholl.

The vitality of the Republican party in Michigan is in the chairman of counties and local communities, and they will be there next fall when Romney will be a candidate.

If they work hard and effectively, Romney will win. But to start a campaign with critical comment about the party one wants to represent is hardly a way to elicit that sort of loyalty.

CERTAIN VIEWS about issues which Romney has expressed are fine as generalities. But in certain specifics he has taken a curious line which is not likely to endear him to those who feel that it is not the function of government to determine the size of a business, but only to be sure that there is adequate competition.

In testifying before the Kefauver subcommittee on anti-trust and Monopoly, Romney said that the size of companies should be limited to a specific percentage of the business of the industry.

This would mean a Procrustean bed created by government, either by distorting the interpretation of the anti-trust laws as they have existed over the years or by a progressive corporation tax. Either would constitute a vast and unjustified intervention by government into economic life.

So long as real competition is assured, the size of a company is a problem of the marketplace, not of management, Congress or the Department of Justice.

Michigan needs a good business manager in the governorship. Its decline and fiscal troubles, despite its wealth and sturdy citizenship, are deplorable.

Romney would probably serve in an outstanding fashion. In attaining that position, he should display something in the nature of recognition of the statewide organization of his party which will get people to work in the precincts for lying in wait for him is a tightly-held, efficient Reutherian machine which can mobilize thousands of experienced political workers and immense sums for a campaign.

Purely Personal

By TRUMAN TWILL

If anyone wonders why I was thrilled by the news that Lester Lanin played for dancing at a White House party it's because this lady I dance with when my arthritis lets up has a red felt hat with "Lester Lanin" written on its and wears it when she seeds the garden.

I feel sorry for the Cleveland Browns player who have spoken out on the sore subject of having all decisions made on the sidelines by a coaching staff that professed to know more about the game than the players on the field. They are too young to remember what happened once to the Cleveland Indians when they criticized the way they were over-managed. "Cry babies" they were called.

The only thing about Col. Glenn's biggest day that surprised me was the discovery that his charming wife stammers when she gets excited. I can't really say what it is about stammering women that does it, but they have something extra going for them.

I have discovered in an examination of background information about traveling in England that a hotel room with an adjoining bath is a rarity even in good-sized towns.

That pesky pup I mention here from time to time eats with the sheep whenever they are fed molasses mash, though the stuff upsets her and all the time she has her head in the trough she is being butted and battered from the rear.

Along with my idea of electing public officials by lottery from panels of qualified citizens, I would suggest that officers of organizations be selected the same way. It would take the pressure off many awkward situations.

I think there should be a cosmonaut's club, composed of men who have attained weightlessness in space. Our members would be Glenn, Grissom and Shepard. Russia would be represented by Gagarin and Titov. These men should get acquainted with one another.

I do not believe a football "world series" would work, though it is one way the professional team owners might wiggle out of an antitrust action. It is unthinkable that football players would go at it day after day, the way baseballers go at it in the series. Otherwise, a World Series wouldn't be worthy of the name.

An editorial published on this page now has been circulated throughout the country, first in The Congressional Record subsequently in a syndicated column written by Charles McDowell Jr. of the Richmond Times-Dispatch. Clippings continue to come in, the latest from San Francisco. "Hit 'em in the Cornflakes," the editorial said, proposing a crusade against breakfast conferences.

Another nice thing about the compact car I drive is that you can open the door and drag your left foot if you skid, though it's hard on left shoes.

No winter in my recollection has made clucks who broadcast weather forecasts look stupider. Of all the dire things they've predicted, not one has come close to happening so far.

This is the time of year when descendants of Pennsylvania Dutchmen wonder what became of panhaus. I wonder about that, but I also wonder what happened to Strom Thurmond, the southern senator who was going to make headlines this winter. Did someone let the air out of his balloon?

Glenn

that caused him "major concern" during the entire flight.

He already had conquered the problem of control of the spacecraft after the automatic control equipment had proved too costly in terms of precious fuel.

Then, after the decision to try a third orbit of the earth, a new problem had cropped up. Glenn's first warning came in a word from the ground below.

Don't jettison your braking rockets after they have fired, he was told.

These are rockets that slow the spacecraft for its plunge to earth. They are at the bottom of the bell-shaped spaceship.

Immediately below the rocket package is the shield that protects the spacecraft and the space pilot from burning up in the enormous heat of reentry into the earth's atmosphere.

The men below, alerted by a warning light, felt that this heat shield might have come loose. The rocket package, held in place by metal straps, also could hold the heat shield in place until the danger period was over.

"It became apparent something was tearing up on the heat-shield end of the capsule," Glenn said, "because there were large pieces—anywhere from pieces as big as the end of your finger to pieces probably seven or eight inches in diameter—breaking off the edge of the capsule and coming back up past the window."

"Well, that obviously was the retropackage (breaking rockets) breaking up," I thought at the time, however, that the retropackage had already been jettisoned.

"So there were some moments of doubt whether the heat shield had been damaged and whether it might be tearing up itself and this—this could have been a bad day all the way around if this had been the case."

But Glenn mastered the moment.

The heat in the capsule did become uncomfortable, and Glenn admitted to sweating profusely. This is why, he said, after he and the Friendship 7 spacecraft had been hauled from the water to the deck of the destroyer Noa he had decided to blow the hatch on the spacecraft and come out the easy way rather than struggle through the difficult exit at the neck of the spacecraft.

Glenn told of the remarkable sunsets over the earth's rim from a space point of view.

The sun goes down over the horizon of earth 18 times as fast as it does on a spot on earth, he said without elaboration. In space the sun is a huge bright light. As its light is seen through the atmosphere of earth, it turns into a brilliant orange and then into the colors of the rainbow.

At the news conference Glenn's sense of humor came to the fore. He told of seeing the weird "fireflies"—unexplained, glowing bluish specks he saw when the sun was rising over the earth. After he had told Dr. George Ruff, the astronauts' psychiatrist, of these strange sights, Ruff asked him: "What did they say, John?"

Monday, after his weekend with his family somewhere, Glenn will return to Washington for a motorcade at 11:15 a.m. from the White House to the Capitol. There he will address a joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Tuesday, he speaks to the House Space Committee at a critical time—when the space budget is submitted.

Wednesday he speaks to the Senate Space Committee.

Then on Thursday he will ride in a ticker-tape parade up Broadway in New York City.

immediately withdraw all its military men and equipment there."

Peiping said, "The armed U.S. imperialist intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam constitutes a direct threat to the security" of North Viet Nam and "it also seriously affects the security of (Communist) China and the peace of Asia."

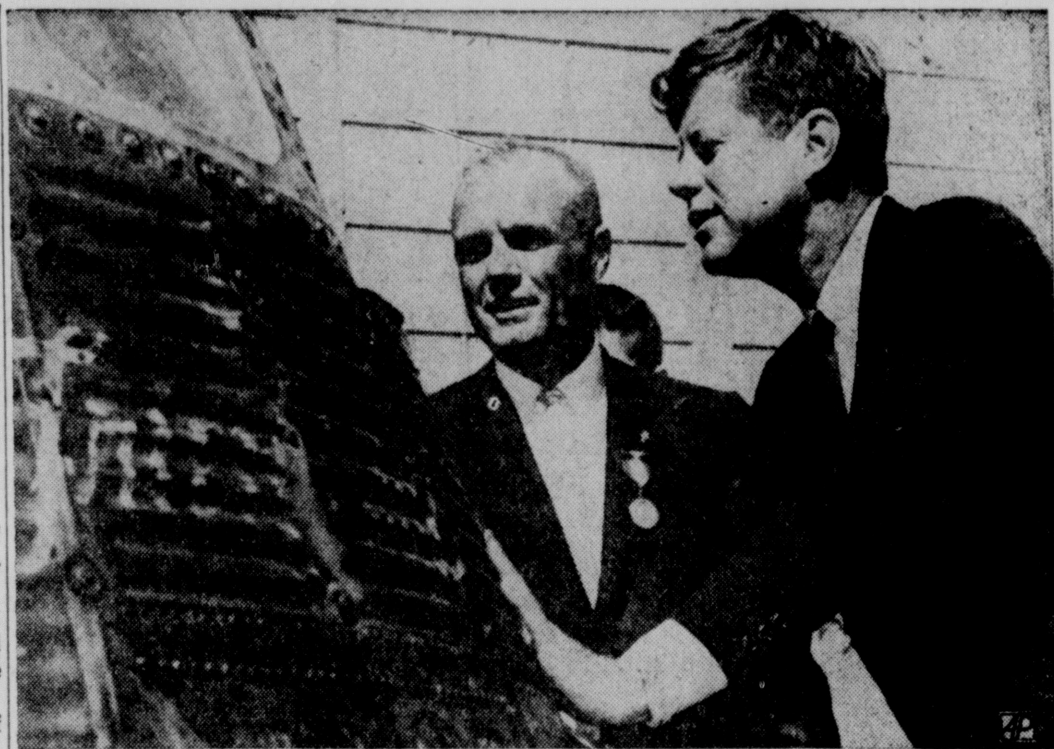

The United States has about 4,000 troops in South Viet Nam to train and supply the pro-Western government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. The Americans are not regarded as combat forces but have orders to shoot back if fired upon. They go on some military missions with South Vietnamese units as advisers.

Peiping said the new U.S. "military assistance command marks the beginning of a new stage in the armed U.S. intervention in southern Viet Nam."

"This command," it said, "is by no means merely one for military assistance, but an operational command of the U.S. imperialists for direct participation."

"The United States has openly indicated that U.S. military men will shoot back if shot at. This shows in fact that the United States is already in an 'undeclared' war in southern Viet Nam."

The Peiping Foreign Ministry also accused the Kennedy administration of "preparing for waging three kinds of wars — nuclear war, conventional war and 'special warfare' — since its assumption of power acting on the will of the big U.S. monopoly groups."

could possibly be attributed to the storm.

In Lima a truck driver said he did not see 12-year-old Jimmy Eberle run into a street. The youngster, however, was first struck by a car and knocked under the wheels of the truck.

No other serious accidents or injuries were reported.

Clinton County Hard Hit

Clinton County was among the hardest hit in the ice-coated southwestern area. The hospital in Wilmington lost its power for several hours after electricity went out, but operated by an auxiliary system. Blanchester was blacked out all night and many other communities were dark for hours.

The ice even stopped trains in eastern Clermont County. The power failures cut off automatic signals and the trains came to a halt. Later operation was restored at a slow pace under manual signaling.

Falling electric lines also stopped several high school basketball games abruptly when gymnasiums suddenly were blacked out.

North of Ohio's U.S. 40 belt high winds sent the heavy snowfall drifting severely.

Traffic on the Ohio Turnpike was placed under a 40 m.p.h. speed but the toll road remained open.

Many other routes in the northern counties, however, became impassable and motorists were stranded by the scores.

A 10-inch snowfall was reported in Geauga County, while Cleveland was expected to have eight inches before the storm subsided. Akron had six inches.

Other parts of the nation also were buffeted by rain, snow, sleet and high winds.

A band of violent thunderstorms moved across Alabama and Mississippi Friday, causing some property damage. Six persons were injured, two seriously, when winds of tornadic force hit Vicksburg, Miss., and five small communities in that state.

Locally heavy snow blanketed northeast Kansas and northwest Missouri. Eight inches were recorded at Atkinson, Kan., and five at St. Joseph and Maryville, Mo. A surprise storm dumped up to six inches of snow in western Oregon.

Freezing temperatures prevailed north of a line extending from north of Boston southwestward to the Texas Panhandle and across New Mexico and Arizona. Sub-zero temperatures during the night were confined to the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. Cutbank, Mont., reported -14.

Bobby Visits Wall, Ends Berlin Stay

BERLIN (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy wound up his two-day morale-building visit to West Berlin today by confronting armed East German policemen at Checkpoint Charlie. The policemen grinned sheepishly and took his picture.

The U. S. attorney general stopped briefly at the checkpoint, the only place in the Red wall dividing the city where the Communists allow foreigners in and out of East Berlin, on his way to the airport. He took off later for Bonn with his wife, Ethel, and his younger brother, Edward.

The street on the Communist side of the checkpoint was empty except for East German guards and a group of East German photographers when the Kennedy motorcade arrived.

The other side was crowded with West Berliners who only moments before had greeted a Soviet staff car with jeers and boos. At the sight of Kennedy, they broke into cheers and began chanting, "Come back soon, Bobby!"

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt pointed out to Kennedy where Soviet and American tanks faced one another across the barricades at the checkpoint last October.

Kennedy then walked up to within inches of the white line marking the border. Two East German police officers with cameras grinned sheepishly at Kennedy, but no words were exchanged.

Across the wall, a score of East Berliners in an apartment block waved from their windows. Kennedy waved back.

Two small West Berlin boys presented Kennedy flowers. Behind them another group of children carried a placard saying, "Kennedy, Johnson, Clay, all of them okay."

"Johnson" was a slightly misspelled tribute to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who also received a tumultuous welcome when he visited West Berlin last August.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay is President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin.

At a news conference before his visit to the checkpoint, the attorney general was asked about reported criticism in some Western circles of his younger brother's excursion into East Berlin. Edward Kennedy visited the Communist sector Friday and said it was a model of what he called the sterility of life under communism.

The reported criticism centered on the younger Kennedy's having shown his passport to East German guards on entering the Communist zone, something U. S. government officials are reluctant to do because the United States does not recognize the Communist East German regime.

The official Communist East German news agency ADN seized on the incident as a sign of "respect for the sovereign rights of the German Democratic Republic."

Edward Kennedy, however, does not hold an official U. S. government position and Americans not in an official capacity have often shown their passports on entering the Soviet sector.

At the outset of the attorney general's news conference, a newsman asked, "I understand there has been some criticism in the United States of the visit of your brother, Edward Kennedy, to East Berlin. Is there anything you would like to say about that?"

The attorney general was clearly prepared for the question. He said his brother's visit "was discussed and recommended by the State Department. I think the State Department showed good judgment."

The attorney general said that he did not visit East Berlin himself because "I have seen East Berlin twice. I have no desire to see it again."

Informants said the main concern of the two Western leaders now is to obtain from Khrushchev a definitive reply to their proposal for opening negotiations at the foreign ministers level.

Kennedy took time out Friday from the heavier matters of state to help heap the nation's honors on Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to fly in a space capsule around the globe.

Electric Computers Put to Use

Pupils Learn Today's 'Slide Rule'

ELECTRONIC PROBLEM SOLVER — Gordon Thomas shows a group of high school students an electronic computer, which can be operated either from wall knobs or from the set of dials on the desk. Thomas is one of two instructors conducting a Saturday morning course in computer operation for interested high school students. Usually such courses are not offered until college.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. (AP) — "In my day, young people learned the slide rule," says 60-year-old organic chemist Dr. Bradley Whitman.

"Now they have to learn the computer."

And Saturday mornings, 9 to 12 finds 20 juniors and seniors from Montclair, N. J., High School learning about computers from Dr. Whitman and Gordon Thomas, 37-year-old biologist and statistician. Schering Corp., the pharmaceutical firm which employs the two men, underwrites the costs and provides facilities for the 13-week course, "Electronic Computer Programming."

At a recent meeting, half the class was upstairs "debugging" a routine which had been punched in tape in computer language. It was fed by one student into the computer for solution. The work was accompanied by a running commentary from Thomas. "Now we'll run the program through the computer to see if it runs. This'll show you how to debug the program. Incidentally, if you want to make money, buy stock in a computer paper company. . . . Even experts make one mistake in every 15 commands. . . . Now what you do in actual practice, you go to the key punch operator and get the correction punched into your program."

Downstairs Dr. Whitman's pupils worked on translating a mathematical problem into a program for the computer, while Dr. Whitman discussed the class.

"I knew high school students were taught about computers in Bethesda, Md., two years ago, and I felt this was something we ought to have here if the kids were interested in it."

"We're not trying to produce skillful programmers here. We're just giving them exposure to computers, so they know what a program looks like and how computers work. We're using a Burroughs machine, but we concentrate on basic commands, what to do with decimal points, things that are with you no matter what computer you use."

"This way, when they get to college they'll know whether this looks like something they might like to do."

Twenty-one students, most of them planning careers in science, were chosen for the class last fall by high school faculty. Forty-five had applied. Only one class member, a girl who had not studied advanced mathematics, has dropped out.

Dr. Whitman says he and Thomas feel the course is worth while, and could be still further improved. "We think the class should be smaller. Each one isn't getting as much actual time at the computer as we had hoped. And we've learned there are certain basic concepts that throw them. The next go-around of this, if there is one, we can get some of these points over that we never anticipated as stumbling blocks."

"We haven't lost many kids you know, and they come on time. We hope they're giving up their Saturday mornings because they're interested."

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

That Occasional Backache

Everyone is likely to have an occasional backache, which fortunately is transitory in most cases and will respond to gentle massage and heat application—plus rest.

A publication of the American Medical Association points out that, for the dull, ill defined type of pain that often is present when one gets up in the morning, a bed board is often of great help, especially if one has a mattress that is soft and tends to sag in the middle.

It is obvious that prevention is the most important approach to most back disabilities. This becomes more significant with advancing age, when there is gradual loss of suppleness in all parts of the body. At any age, however, avoid sudden twisting movements, double movements such as bending and twisting at the same time, and extremes such as toe-touching or falling back on the hands with the spine arched. This may be all right for a gymnast or trained athlete, but it can be dangerous for the average man or woman.

For acute cases of backache—sudden, excruciating pain—it's hardly necessary to urge that the victim see a physician. For less severe, but persistent, backaches, it is best to see medical help without waiting too long.

There can be many different common areas of discomfort in the sacro-iliac region, or upper pelvis, where there is an especially wide range of movement. Tendons may be frayed or pulled loose, a muscle group may go into acute spasm, or one of the cushions between the vertebrae may get out of place, as in a slipped disc.

These mishaps can occur without much apparent cause—bending over to pick up something, or lifting a too-heavy weight without squatting properly.

Minor discomfort that could become severe can result from slouching at a desk or typewriter. Posture chairs may save many aches and pains for those who work most of the day at desks.

Frank Sinatra, Juliet Prowse Won't Marry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dancer Juliet Prowse won't be the third Mrs. Frank Sinatra.

She and the singer abruptly broke off their engagement Thursday night, blaming career trouble.

Sinatra and Miss Prowse announced six weeks ago that they planned to marry. They hadn't gotten around to setting the date, although April and June had been mentioned.

The break came suddenly. A terse announcement said: "A conflict of career interests has led us to make this decision jointly. We both feel it is better to make it now rather than later."

A publicity spokesman added: "Neither will be available for comment. There will be no amplification."

Sinatra, 46, long a bachelor, a millionaire with a string of gorgeous girls, surprised even many close friends when he announced he planned to marry the leggy dancer from South Africa.

Miss Prowse, 25, never married before and new in Hollywood, was much less famous than some of Sinatra's dates and less flashy than others.

Sinatra's two previous marriages — to childhood sweetheart Nancy Barbato and actress Ava Gardner — also were plagued with career troubles. His skyrocketing fame as a crooner rocked the first, and Miss Gardner's prominence for a while outstripped his own.

Otterbein Victim of 82-39 Trouncing by Wittenberg

Ohio Wesleyan Rips Capital; B-W Defeats Mount Union

By The Associated Press

Favorites did all the winning in Ohio Conference Tournament opening round play Friday night in Akron and Columbus. Some of Friday's easy winners may have a rougher time in tonight's second round action.

Biggest run-away winner was Wittenberg as the Tigers trounced Otterbein, 82-39, in the southern division. The Tigers take their 16-4 over-all mark against Denison, 12-9, tonight.

Regular season conference champion Ohio Wesleyan pulled away from Capital early in the second half and coasted to a 73-58 win in the Columbus nightcap.

Wesleyan takes a fancy 21-2 record into tonight's tussle with Muskingum, 13-8. Muskingum pinned the only conference loss on the Bishops, 62-60, back on Dec. 14.

In the northern division at Akron: Baldwin-Wallace's Yellow Jackets, building up an early lead, rolled over Mount Union, 75-62. The Jackets meet Hiram tonight. Host Akron topped Wooster 75-53, then Oberlin trimmed Heidelberg 62-45. The latter game didn't get under way until after midnight, more than two hours late. A snowstorm delayed Oberlin's arrival.

Akron, with a home floor advantage, meets Oberlin tonight. The two winners play next Friday.

Wittenberg and Ohio Wesleyan wins tonight would set up a rematch between the two schools in Columbus next Friday. Wittenberg has won the conference tourney three straight times, but the Bishops beat the Tigers in a regular season game.

In wallowing Otterbein, the Tigers hit 52 per cent of their shots and outrebounced the losers, 47-28.

Ray Slabaugh led Wesleyan against Capital, scoring 24 points and shining on defense. Larry Washburn, who got 20 points, broke the game open shortly after intermission by hitting seven straight points to open up a 10-point OWU lead.

At Akron, Jerry Schrock, Bob Walters and Ray Snyder clicked for 20 points each in the Baldwin-Wallace win. Tony Archibald led Mount Union with 19.

Akron led by as much as 23 points during the second half in beating Wooster.

Oberlin led by only seven at halftime but had no trouble in the second half against Heidelberg.

In the only other game on the Ohio cage front Friday night, league-leading Bethany handed Western Reserve a 98-73 Presidents' Conference lesson.

Faces East Palestine In Title Game

Knox Nips Boardman 45-43

In 7th Grade Tournament

Knox moved into the final round of the second annual Seventh Grade Basketball Tourney Friday night by edging a strong Boardman squad 45-43 in action at the Salem Junior High Gym.

Knox will battle the East Palestine Bulldogs tonight at 6:30 to decide the championship.

The game between the Salem Eighth Grade and St. Paul slated for last night was rescheduled for 7:30 tonight. The winner will be champion in the ninth annual Eighth Grade Tourney. Springfield's Eighth Grade, which dumped East Palestine and Knox to gain a final round bid, withdrew from the tourney.

In last night's action Knox was down 13-0 at the first end of the first canto but came back hard in the second period and held a 24-16 halftime lead. Knox led 36-28 at the three-quarter mark but was forced to stave off a determined Boardman uprising in the final quarter before claiming the victory.

Wilson and Tinsley garnered 13 each for Knox while Tepsick pot 15 and Ellis 12 for Boardman.

Associated Press Sports Writer

John Pappas has lots of hair, brass and ambition. But he has no control. And no contract.

"He's wild enough to hurt someone," New York Mets official Johnny Murphy said after watching the would-be pitcher Friday.

Pappas is the brash youngster from Long Island who walked into the Mets training camp with a battered glove, sneakers and no experience. He admitted his last workout had been throwing a ball against a blank wall.

But the bushy-haired youth said he was pretty fast and wanted a tryout. Newsmen were intrigued by his brashness and took up his cause. He got his tryout, pitching for about 18 minutes while Murphy looked on.

"The Mets are not interested in Pappas," Murphy said. "I don't think he could play pro ball in any league."

"I'm not disappointed," Pappas shrugged, and started north while baseball returned to the more routine problems involved in getting ready for another season.

One of the problems involves Roger Maris, now the only New York Yankee still unsigned for the 1962 season.

Maris, who hit 61 home runs last season, became the last unsigned Yank when second baseman Bobby Richardson came to terms Friday, for a reported $25,000, an increase of about $4,000.

Maris has until Feb. 28, the official reporting date, before officially being classified a holdout. He reportedly is asking about $70,000, about $10,000 more than the Yankees are offering.

The Los Angeles Dodgers signed outfielder Wally Moon to a contract calling for about $40,000, tops on the club. Moon, 31, led the club in hitting, .328, and runs batted in, 88, last season.

The New York Mets returned two pitchers, obtained in the player draft, who announced their retirement. Johnny Antonelli was returned to the Milwaukee Braves and Billy Loes to the San Francisco Giants.

Three Stars Drop Out of Track Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Beatty, the only indoor sub-four-minute miler, runs a lonely race against the clock instead of Ron Delany tonight in the national AAU championships in Madison Square Garden.

"I've had a cold all week," said the 5-foot-6 Los Angeles track club ace, "and haven't been able to shake it. I've been training in the rain, so it's understandable. But it will be a good race."

Beatty ran the mile in 3:59.9 on the boards in the Los Angeles Times meet two weeks ago and followed it with a 4:00.9 effort in the New York Athletic Club meet last week. That was his final warmup in his announced intention of breaking Delany's 40-race (34 at the mile) indoor streak.

But Delany came up with a sore Achilles tendon in his left foot and had to withdraw. He's finished for the season. Beatty has a modest indoor record of 12 straight victories going into the meet.

Delany wasn't the only top notcher to scratch. John Uelses, the sole member of the pole vaulters' 16-foot club, hasn't recovered from a two-week siege of the flu and dropped out. Parry O'Brien, who has won the AAU shotput title the last nine years, has an injured finger and won't make it.

With Uelses absent, the favorite will be Dexter Elkins of Southern Methodist, who has cleared 15-6½ and has come very close to going over 16. He's a member of the fiberglass pole club.

O'Brien would have been the underdog against 19-year-old Gary Gubner of New York University, who is aiming to break his eight day-old indoor record of 64-11½. He wants to make at least 65 feet.

UCLA, Stanford Meet In Big Five Tilt

Cincinnati-Wichita Contest Tops Tonight's Cage Action

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati faces the latest key assignment in its long string of basketball successes tonight—a victory over Wichita.

The Bearcats, gunning for their fifth straight Missouri Valley Conference title and second national championship in a row, could very well blow both if they don't handle the Wheatshockers.

Cincinnati and Bradley are tied for the league lead at 9-2, with the 'Cats closing out their league schedule in the home game tonight. The Braves finish at St. Louis next Saturday. If Cincinnati wins and St. Louis upends Bradley, the Bearcats are in. If both front-runners win, they'll settle matters on a neutral court later, with the survivor carrying the Missouri Valley banner into the NCAA title tournament.

But if the Bearcats don't come through tonight—and they were edged at Wichita 52-51 two months ago—it could mean the end of a reign.

Cincinnati-Wichita is only one of the big ones on tap tonight. UCLA can nail down at least a tie for the Big Five championship by beating Stanford at Los Angeles. The Uclans marched a step closer to the title Friday night, beating California 68-62. And a victory for Yale against last-place Columbia would clinch at least a share of the Ivy League crown for the Eli. Yale nipped its closest rival, Cornell, 48-47 Friday night.

Colorado and Kansas State, heading into the stretch of their duel for Big Eight supremacy, warm up for their showdown next week with home games tonight. Colorado, 9-0 in the conference, takes on Iowa State and Kansas State, 8-1, meets Oklahoma.

In the Southeastern Conference, pacesetter Mississippi State entertains Louisiana State while Kentucky, one game back of the Bulldogs, is at Alabama. Prime games in the Southwest are Texas Tech at Texas and Texas Christian at Southern Methodist. Tech and SMU head the standings at 8-3, but Texas A&M climbed to within one-half game of the leaders Friday night with an 89-79 decision over Arkansas.

Utah State and Colorado State University, the two contenders for the Skyline's NCAA berth, have conference tests. Montana is at Utah State while CSU plays at Wyoming. The Utags and CSU have identical records, 9-2 in the league and 18-5 over-all.

Friday night, Idaho sprang a major upset by handing tenth-ranked Oregon State its third straight setback, 52-51. The Vandals, stressing defense and possession, built up a small lead and then withstood the Beavers' last-gasp rally.

Houston tripped Southern California 56-51, throwing a full-court press at the Trojans and holding them without a field goal for a 13-minute span in the second half. The Cougars, who overcame a seven-point deficit, won their 20th in 25 starts for their best record in history.

Lakers Beat Packers, Win Division Title

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers, new Western Division champions of the National Basketball Association, now have another goal — they want to set a division record for victories.

The Lakers clinched the division championship Friday night with a 124-117 overtime victory over the Chicago Packers in a game typical of the close ones they have been winning all year.

"We've won 48 games now," said Lakers' Coach Fred Schaus, "and need only four more victories in our last 10 games to set a division record. We want that record. We're not about to slack off during the rest of the regular season."

The record is held by St. Louis, which was 51-28 in 1960-61. Los Angeles is now 48-22. The Eastern Division Boston Celtics hold the NBA record, 59-16 in 1959-60.

Majors Outlast Chiefs, Pipers Win Easily Over Tapers

By The Associated Press

If the Chicago Majors win the second half Eastern Division title in the American Basketball League a large share of the credit probably will go to Tony Jackson, the former All-America at St. Johns University of New York.

Jackson has the knack of coming through in the pinch and the Majors, as a result, have been winning close games. He threw in the key baskets that helped beat San Francisco on Thursday. He did it again Friday night as the Majors pulled out a 125-123 overtime victory over the Hawaii Chiefs and tied the idle Pittsburgh Rens for first place in the Eastern Division.

The Cleveland Pipers stayed in the thick of contention for the Eastern crown, half a game back of the Rens and Majors, with a 138-121 triumph over the New York Tapers.

It was four free throws by Jackson in the last seconds of the extra period that gave Chicago its victory over the Chiefs at Honolulu.

First National, Stamping, Bricker's Win In City Loop

Kaiser, Southeast Plaza and Berlin, all winless in second half action of the City Class A Basketball League, must have thought there was an air raid at the Memorial Building Friday night.

Southeast Plaza was bombed by Bricker's 99-34 while Berlin was crushed by First National Bank 93-41 and Kaiser fell to Salem Stamping 80-41. First National and Stamping remain tied for first place in the loop with 4-0 records, with Bricker's close behind, sporting a 3-0 mark.

In the Bricker's-Southeast Plaza game, Bricker's moved to a 44-20 halftime advantage and was never threatened as it came within one point of triple-figures.

Four Bricker's players ended the game in double-digits. Dean Nicholson was high man of the game as he potted 13 floor attempts and three charity tosses for 29 tallies, followed closely by Bob Hutton with 28 counters. Bob Adams added 14 points to the winning cause and Chuck Faust tossed in 12. George Ramsey and Bill Crookston each had 12 for the losers.

Burt Patterson dropped in 25 points for First National in its humiliating defeat of Berlin.

The winners pulled to a 15 - 5 lead at the end of the first period, led 44-19 at intermission and 65-34 going into the final period.

Along with Patterson, four other First National players ended the game in the double figures. Red Stanley netted 18 and Chuck Greiner meshed 16. Bob Stallsmith and Andy Salkow each contributed 15. Rich Confuey had 11 and teammate Jim Brown 10 for Berlin.

A 34-POINT EFFORT on the part of Bill Pauline sparked the Salem Stamping basketball squad to its rout of Kaiser. Pauline swished the nets with 15 buckets

It is getting to that time of year when thousands of people travel many miles to visit our Country Store, most of them come on Sunday afternoons. Our local people are our life, the others the spice.

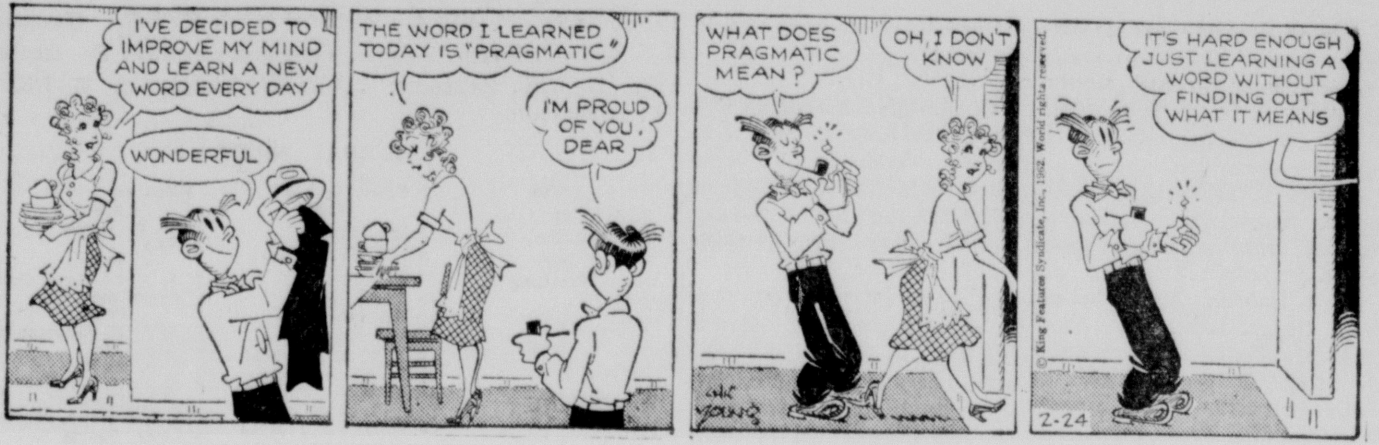

QUESTIONS-ANSWERS

Q-Is the moth considered a domesticated insect?
A-Yes, one kind of moth is the only insect, except the honeybee, that has been domesticated by man. This moth spins a silk cocoon used by man.
Q-Did James Watt invent the steam engine?
A-Watt was only improver, not the inventor. The first practical steam engine was patented by Thomas Savery of England in 1688.
